

Shaping workplace volunteering in Western Australia

The Corporate Volunteer Council of WA (CVC), convened by Volunteering WA, is a coalition of businesses that recognise the importance of workplace volunteering.

The CVC provides professional guidance, development, support and networking opportunities. CVC participants benefit from the sharing of knowledge and resources, and gain a greater awareness of the needs of their local community.

KEY PRIORITIES

PROMOTION

The CVC raises the profile of volunteering that offers valuable social investment outcomes for Western Australia. Workplace volunteering enables a clear pathway to the volunteering sector, enabling mutual benefits for community, workplaces and volunteers.

PROGRAMMING

The CVC offers a forum to bring purpose-driven organisations together to share ideas, research and resources. Council representatives have a collective belief that workplace volunteering plays a pivotal role in helping WA communities to thrive. The CVC takes on an active role in mentoring workplaces that share this sentiment.

PEER COLLABORATION

Bringing together like-minded people who believe that corporate volunteering contributes to a better community is at the heart of the CVC. The Council provides a collaborative forum to share ideas, research and resources.

PRAISE

Let's tell everyone which businesses are doing it best. The Council highlights good practice and benchmarks in corporate volunteering.
